Position Overview

United States Probation Officers perform functions that assist federal judges in making informed decisions on individuals charged with and convicted of criminal offenses and supervise individuals to assist with behavior change and compliance with conditions of supervision. The duties specified herein are intended to provide generalized examples of the major duties and responsibilities that are performed by a U.S. Probation Officer within any unit and do not reflect all duties performed by positions covered in this announcement. For an overview of the position see this video developed by the district of Minnesota.

Position Description Assignment of position could either be in the Court Services (Investigations) or Supervision Services (Supervision) Unit depending on availability and candidate qualifications.

Court Services Unit – A U. S. Probation Officer conducts investigations and prepares bail and presentence reports for the Court with recommendations for detention, release, and sentencing of individuals charged and convicted of federal offenses. The preparation of these reports requires interviewing individuals and their families; investigating the offense, prior record, and psychosocial status of the individual; and contacting law enforcement agencies, attorneys, victims of the crimes, schools, etc. The purpose of these activities is to ascertain the individual's background, assess danger to the community and risk of non-appearance at future court proceedings, and assess the probability of future criminal behavior. Officers apply U.S. Sentencing Commission guidelines and case law; decide the appropriate course of action after analyzing any objections to presentence reports; resolve disputed issues; make written sentencing recommendations to the Court; and appear at court hearings to assist as needed. Officers need strong interviewing skills, excellent writing skills, an ability to analyze and assess circumstances and situations, and should be adept at effectively managing their time with competing priorities.

Conditions of Employment:

Applicants must be U. S. citizens or eligible to work without restriction in the United States.

- Selected candidate must successfully complete an FBI background investigation with law enforcement agencies including fingerprint, criminal, financial and employment records check.

Supervision Services Unit - A U. S. Probation Officer supervises individuals under supervision to encourage behavior change, maximize adherence to imposed conditions, and reduce risk to the community. Officers maintain personal contact through office and community visits. Officers intervene directly, and through referrals, to assist individuals in addressing issues such as substance use, mental health, negative peers, etc. Officers routinely assess risk to the community and implement necessary treatment or violation proceedings. When necessary, officers prepare violation reports, which may include application of U.S. Sentencing Commission revocation guidelines, make recommendations for disposition, and may testify at court or parole hearings. Officers must maintain detailed written records of case activity. Officers need strong relationship skills, interviewing skills, writing skills, an ability to analyze and assess circumstances and situations, and should be adept at effectively managing their time with competing priorities.

Minimum Qualifications

Completion of a bachelor's degree from an accredited college or university in a field of academic study, such as criminal justice, criminology, psychology, sociology, human relations, or business or public administration, which provides evidence of the capacity to understand and apply legal requirements and human relations skills. Candidates will be required to undergo a background investigation which includes an FBI fingerprint check, and retention in the position will depend upon a favorable background investigation.

Preferred Qualifications

In addition to the minimum qualifications, preference will be given to applicants who can demonstrate the following skills and abilities:

- Ability to work under pressure with short deadlines while maintaining a positive and professional demeanor.
- Ability to exercise discretion and sound judgment, maintain confidentiality, and foster high ethical standards.
- A belief that thinking and behaviors can change.
- A belief that an officer has the responsibility to develop a collaborative relationship that assists individuals in building skills that change thinking/behavior, while also monitoring/protecting community safety.
- Balance decision making and recommendations where motivation, performance, and risk to harm are equally considered.
- Accept and expect a culture of feedback and coaching.
- Embrace and contribute to our responsibility to improve our individual, district, and system effectiveness.
- Embrace lifelong learning and the pursuit of evidence-based practices.
